Objective of this call for papers:

The call for papers aims at sparking a multidisciplinary reflection, from the perspective of Professors Jean and John Comaroff’s work, on the challenges posed the implementation of the Peace Agreement between the Government of Colombia and the FARC-EP, and on the emergence of crime as a central preoccupation in the context of Colombia’s post-conflict. We are inspired by their original reflections on violence, law and (dis)order in post-colonial contexts. We believe their work, although mainly developed in response to the aftermath of apartheid in South Africa, offers a productive approach to the challenges Colombians face in the post-peace agreement phase, especially in terms of the ways in which we think about violence, order and crime, justice, and truth.

The organizers warmly invite the submission of paper proposals. Possible topics for discussion include, but are not restricted to:

- The Colombian experience of transitional justice
- Structural critiques of transitional justice and their implications for Colombia
- Race and ethnicity in the Colombian transition
- Crime and policing in Colombia after the Peace Agreement
- Post-demobilization armed non-state actors
- Criminal prosecution and state-building in the context of the Special Jurisdiction for Peace
- Memory, truth, and the implementation of the Colombian Truth Commission
- Law, (dis)order, and “territorial peace”
- Legal fetishism and the politics of rights after the Peace Agreement
- Post-conflict economies in the implementation of the Peace Agreement
- Legal ethnography in post-conflict settings

Professors Jean and John Comaroff will be visiting Universidad de los Andes (Bogotá, Colombia) from October 25 to 27, 2017. To celebrate their work, the Doctorate in Law and the Legal Theory Department of the School of Law and the M.A. in Peacebuilding of the Universidad de los Andes are organizing the Workshop “Thinking about Law and Violence in the Colombian Post-Conflict with Jean and John Comaroff” (October 25 and 27, 2017).
